A simple application designed for everyone looking for a way to follow the time they spend at the computer in a precise and accurate way, whether they do so for personal or professional reasons. It has a clean and easy to understand interface and it can also generate a number of graphs to help you keep track of the time you spend on your PC at home or at school. It is a perfect tool for tracking tasks and activities, but it also includes a special "profiling" function, which makes it possible to have it automatically analyze the computer sessions of those using it. The application is completely free and does not include any adverts or useless options, only a clean and useful interface that will allow you to follow your computer sessions in a simple way. Painless Time Tracker is not to be taken for granted, as it has a number of functions. The "Profiling" feature is the best one of them, as it enables the software to analyze and collect data from a specific computer session. The fact that it can not only analyze the computer sessions, but can also collect and export data in.xls format is a bonus feature. The only thing to be concerned about is that the software includes adverts in the application. It is located on the web browser, and they are simply a couple of GIF images that will display the application logo instead of using an adblocker. It is a paid software, and it does not really bother you, as the adverts will only appear once, and the price will be paid back in a short time. Painless Time Tracker is an application worth considering if you would like to have a way of being more organized, while at the same time, being more productive. Painless Time Tracker Functionality: • Profiling: The software is able to analyze the computer session and collect and export data in.xls format. • Basic functions: It works in both Windows 10 and Windows 7. The only difference is that Windows 7 includes a cleaner and more organized interface. • Clean interface: The interface is minimalist and easy to use. You can quickly access all information without wasting time. • Resource tracking: The application tracks the resources used by the PC and displays them in a graph. • Check for updates: This functionality can be used to update the application. Painless Time Tracker Requirements: • Windows 7 and Windows 10: It is capable of running on both versions of Windows 7 and Windows 10. • Internet connection: The application does not work without an internet

Painless Time Tracker is an application meant to follow your actions on any computer in order for you to better understand and know how you spend your work time in front of the PC. It is a simple concept, yet important, as it proves most useful in stressful environments, raising productivity and efficiency. This means you will never have the feeling of wasting time again, in front of a PC, so long as you use Painless Time Tracker. Its Interface The application looks fresh and fits well with the Windows 10 UI. This basically means you will have no problem, aesthetically speaking, with Painless Time Tracker. The fact that the interface is not filled with ads or useless options should be convincing enough for most users. Apart from it looking good, the applications is also snappy. You can access all data, fast and easily, at the click of a button. An app such as this should base its productivity on the concept of speed and maneuverability. Its Functions While it does not incorporate an abundance of options, Painless Time Tracker doesn't need to, either. Its sole purpose is to watch how you spend your time on the computer and record it for later use. It also gives you the chance to generate graphs and export them in.xls format. Combined with the accurate presentation of actions within the app, Painless Time Tracker seems like a very good choice software-wise if you desperately need a way to become more organized and self-aware. Painless Time Tracker is an application worth taking into consideration. No matter if you use it for work, at home or in school, the app will prove its usefulness in organizing and arranging your daily schedule without much hassle. You will become more productive, highly organized and, as a result, happy with your work. Barra say: The main reason for the success of Painless Time Tracker is its ease of use, overall good looks, and clear UI. There's no need for additional software to be installed for the app to run. Painless Time Tracker records your use of the computer every time you're logged in and tracks it in a simple graph for easy analysis.
