1. When using ADOBE PHOTOSHOP, the main program, we are entitled to a completely FREE upgrade of the product. On the other hand when using non-adobe application such as Word, we pay for the upgrades. So if it were not for this feature it would not be right for the customer to lose his money by buying the brand new version without getting his money's worth. I can't help but think of marketing folks in their shoes when they decided to use in-house Photoshop products. (Grow business with the new CS version of Photoshop). OK, I'm going to give you a little background on Photoshop before showing you what's new and the enhancements in Lightroom 5. I have been a paid user of Lightroom since its release as part of Photoshop CS2. Lightroom is a separate program that runs directly off of Adobe's Photoshop product. In this review, I will only be focusing on the new features in Lightroom 5. I'm going to assume that my audience is familiar with Photoshop and Lightroom, but to be sure I am going to add some very basic info. I know in a previous post I had mentioned that the Lightroom app was for the iPad.
The most important thing to know about Lightroom is that it is not a stand-alone program. It must be launched from the Adobe Photoshop CS "& CS2&" program. If you launch both from the same program window, the Lightroom content generally runs in the lower right. This is one of the ways that Lightroom enhances the edit capabilities of Photoshop. The second thing to know is that Lightroom does not occupy the entire screen. As you add new content to the catalog, it will generally appear on the image area of the screen. You may also access the development module via the right arrow. You'll see that Lightroom's interface is similar to Photoshop. The welcome screen and the individual catalog and canvas screens are all the same. However, you can access the grid, and Lightroom's search tool is different.

Do you feel the mobile app impact after you upgrade your Windows 8.1 device to Windows 10? If you don't, then you're the very atypical user indeed. Android and iOS users will not feel the much-needed upgrade, as apps are not frequently updated. So, your older devices will definitely be compatible with the latest mobile apps. Windows users, on the other hand, are entitled for the additional mobile app impact; this is especially for those who keep on using their devices for business purposes or personal ones.
