Adobe Photoshop has packed many new features. To start with, it can read files from the new Dropbox website, saving it to the cloud and allowing the users to access files from virtually any computer. Users are finding new ways to create and edit images with new features that Adobe Photoshop provided in 2014. The new version of Photoshop makes the overall performance of Adobe Photoshop 2018 faster. Also, the performance of the new version is 60% better than the previous version with the same settings. Also, the feature Intelligent Edge Refinement lets you use inward and outward edges of the object accurately. Adobe Photoshop users can now use features of the cloud-based auto-complete, such as Autosuggest. With Autosuggest, a user can quickly type text within a document, and instantly see suggestions for the characters or words already used. Users can now also use Autosuggest through QuickType UI. Users can also now more easily access their personal cloud storage. The personal cloud storage feature was launched with the release of Photoshop CS 1.0 in 1992. The process provides users with easy access to personal cloud storage with a sign in screen that automatically accesses their different cloud accounts. A new feature is the Photoshop Match Color. This feature lets the user learn the colors of various items, so that when they select a color, it is not applied to the image. Adobe says that the new feature makes it easier to use textures for design purposes. A new feature is also a Define Regions utility, that is, it lets the users set a rectangular cursor on a photo and because it is a selection, the users can add text and crop features. Likewise, the new Mask Guide feature lets the users check where the user can crop the canvas with the grid.
